

Peter Girvan

Business Development Manager
Denroy Limited

Peter is Business Development Manager at Denroy Limited, a Northern Ireland-based advanced manufacturing company specialising in high-performance polymer components for the aerospace and defence sectors. Denroy was the first company in the world to achieve the Aero Excellence™ Silver award.

With 20 years' experience in business development, Peter has worked across aerospace, defence, automotive, energy and renewable technologies. For the past five years at Denroy, Peter has helped drive growth through new and existing partnerships, drawing on the company's capabilities in advanced polymer technologies. This cross-sector experience has given Peter a broad perspective on complex markets, strategic planning and long-term customer development.

Peter has a strong track record of building global partnerships that align customer requirements with manufacturable, cost-effective solutions, with a focus on quality, reliable delivery and long-term value.

Denroy has an established presence in Canada and longstanding relationships with customers including Bombardier, Mecachrome and Airbus. Its early adoption of Aero Excellence™, which is expanding internationally, has enabled the company to demonstrate its operational maturity and advanced manufacturing capability against a recognised standard. Achieving Silver has helped strengthen customer confidence, reinforcing Denroy's position in a highly competitive global aerospace market, for which Peter's role was instrumental.
